

Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families

You're never too young to talk mental health

Tips for talking for parents and carers

HRH The Duchess of Cambridge An introduction from our Patron,

As parents, we all want our as they grow up. to understand and be open about start in life. Encouraging children downs that life will throw at them skills to cope with the ups and their feelings can give them the children to have the best possible normal, and that they have the understand that emotions are It's important that our children confidence to ask for help if they are struggling.

Children and Families, which is being rolled out across primary schools mental health campaign by the Anna Freud National Centre for This is why I am proud to support the You're never too young to talk small problems from snowballing into bigger ones express their feelings, respond appropriately, and prevent parents. They demonstrate how we can help children The campaign's resources are excellent tools to support

What is mental health?

about our feelings, our thinking, our emotions and our moods. Looking after our mental health is important We all have mental health. Mental health is want to in our lives.

They stop us doing what we such as by talking about a TV character's feelings normal part of life: Anywhere is a good place together. Model everyday talk about feelings to talk; in the car, walking the dog or cooking Make conversations about mental health a eye contact, focus on the child and it's horrible to be half listened to. Keep Give your full attention: We all know ignore distractions.

come down to the child's level it open and relaxed and make sure you Check your body language: Try to keep saying or tell them they're "just being silly". Resist Take it seriously: Don't downplay what the child is the urge to reassure them that everything is fine today?" This will help to extend the conversation. Ask open questions: Such as "How did your day go arise: It can be our automatic reaction to steer away from difficult emotions Calmly stay with the feelings that solutions: Show that you accept Offer empathy rather than try to solve the problem. what they are telling you but don't and value the child's feelings, even Remember we are all different: Respect though they may be different to yours

U

6 the child's words, tone of voice and body Look for clues about feelings: Listen to language.

feelings might be: Some ways to start a conversation about

"You don't seem your usual self. Do you "How are you feeling at the moment?" want to talk about it?"

"Do you fancy a chat?"

"I'm happy to listen if you need a chat."

Talking Mental Health Animation

Talking Mental Health is an animation designed to help begin conversations about mental health in the classroom and beyond.

The animation and accompanying resources have been created by a team of animators, children, teachers and clinicians, and is being taught to year 5 and 6 children around the UK.

The animation and resources are freely downloadable from www.annafreud.org

Finding support

ChildLine: For 18s and under 0800 1111

NSPCC: 0808 800 5000

YoungMinds Parent Helpline: 0808 802 5544

Youth Wellbeing Directory: youthwellbeing.org

About the Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families

The Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families has developed and delivered pioneering mental health care for over 60 years.

Our aim is to transform current mental health provision in the UK by improving the quality, accessibility and effectiveness of treatment.

We believe that every child and their family should be at the heart of the care they receive, working in partnership with professionals.

Our Patron: Her Royal Highness

The Duchess of Cambridge

Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families is a company limited by guarantee, company number

03819888, and a registered charity, number 1077106

Anna Freud Centre Kantor Centre of Excellence 4-8 Rodney Street London N1 9JH